This is bad MN - I think we have to look at this as an outsider reading, because we're so entrenched in her bullshit and know how nasty she is

Jones' biggest remaining celebrity client is Brady, though according to three former Jonesworks employees, tensions have also flared on the Brady account.

I can't kill this fucking people piece. There was a meeting that happened that we all know of. And other people have gone forward to people confirming this. We can't kill everything. I suggest we just either Ignore or include a line of background saying that there was no meeting about his behavior. This is becoming so petty and tit for tat I can't.

[redacted] Melissa Nathan (Owner)

Yep - i'm the only way we can change. The story is just to say they had many meetings about the film the direction the film is heading but not one meeting was about his behaviour and again... What behaviour are we referencing? What other other side even trying to say that he did we are still incredibly confused about all of this because you're not mentioning an actual point.

I don't even even know what was supposed to say anymore to him like he supposed to say it's been a non-stop week of nine hour calls
